“ Although I will not be able to be with you for Uncle Eddie’s memorial service I wanted to let you know how important he was to me. Uncle Eddie was a kind understanding and gentle man. Slow to anger and quick to encourage and support. I watched him evangelize seekers in Jennings. He would show film strips and explain who Jesus was and how he was sacrificed for our sins and encouraged the individuals to consider following Christ and be baptized. Many did. I have always appreciated his kind heart and gentle nature in dealing with any issue. He was a very wise man because he lived his life as he felt God want him to live and love people. He did not let a common practice of judging people and prejudice enter into his dealing with people. He treated you as one of God creations with respect and honor, as an equal not as someone to be looked down on.

When I did my research for my doctorate I researched how humans develop the concept of God in their lives. It is believed that we look to those we grew up with, parents, grand-parents, friends of the family, uncles or aunts to understand the attributes of God, like love, forgiveness, value, appreciation, and even discipline. We process these and interpret scripture with this in mind. Uncle Eddie helped me see more of what I accept the attributes and love of God our Father than any other individual in my life. I loved Uncle Eddie and honored him in my life as a man to be lifted up as the foremost example of a Christ follower

God’s peace,
Mark
