“ Everyone in life has their destiny when something tragic happens; I try to remind myself there was a reason that this person went through the struggles they had to encounter.

Last night I watched my daddy's little sister end her struggle with cancer here on earth. In her last moments, it was clear she was making her final arrangements to leave her wounded body here and take her place in her heavenly one.

I wasn't there for her many years of struggling through the treatments and all the pain she had to endure during them. In her last moments watching her leave that torment and embrace peace was one of the most beautiful things I have ever experienced.

Seeing her wounded and so hurt fighting to the very end makes her a hero in my book by any standard. Cancer might have taken her body, but it will never have her heart.

May God forever hold her in heaven and keep her safe. May God hold the hands of her family. May God see fit to give you peace in your time of grief.

May God hold anyone and bless anyone struggling today with cancer or any illness. Grant them peace and love and lighten the load. Amen

Peace Love and Blessings,

Tahnya, Jasmine, Patrick, Gawain, and Lancelot.

“ I've known lulu for a long time. She was a great person with a great heart and personality. We hadn't seen each other for many years. I went to their house one day with a niece and nephew of hers and thinking she would not remember me. We walked in the door and she says HELLO CONNIE! She remembered me after all these years that we haven't seen each other....Really got to my heart..R.I.P lulu. God has taken another angel home.
