“ There is no pain so great as the memory of joy in present grief.”

I was so sad to hear that Mr. Meche, my former neighbor for many years, had died yesterday from my mother. Some of my best memories growing up are intertwined with lovely memories of Mr. Meche and his wife Francis. He knew me as a child, teenager, college student, adult, married and with a child. When I visited Louisiana, I often made it a point to visit Mr. and Mrs. Meche, it should have been more. He was a big man, always kind, had a hearty laugh and a great smile. The world is sadder knowing that he's no longer with us, but most importantly, not here with Frances, his wife.
